The State of Florida has postponed the implementation of the 2010 Florida Building Code until March 15, 2012. This action has been taken in order to facilitate the availability of appropriate software updates, to correlate with the release of the Florida Fire Prevention Code, and to provide staff sufficient transition time.

Building permit applications submitted on or after March 2012 shall demonstrate compliance with the new code. Likewise, Florida Building Commission approved products must demonstrate compliance with the new edition of the code by the effective date.

Additional information will be available in the near future at www.floridabuilding.org.
