Pam Iorio Mayor

March 2008

Fiscal year 2007 was an active and successful year for all seven of Tampa's redeveloping communities, together comprising nine Community Redevelopment Areas (CRAs). This report highlights the progress we are making. Notable accomplishments include:

- Construction commencement in the Downtown CRA of the Element, which will add 386 residential units to the 961 units completed within the last 3 years.
- Completion of approximately $30 million in private investment in the East Tampa CRA, including multifamily apartments and a variety of commercial projects.
- Facilitation of the ownership transition of the Ybor CRAs signature retail and entertainment venue, Centro Ybor, to new owners who are already investing to revitalize this strategic asset.

Fiscal year 2007 was also a year of redevelopment challenges. The downturn in the residential real estate market slowed progress on our key public private partnerships, the $500 million Heights redevelopment and the $500 million Encore development. Additionally, the Florida Supreme Court issued the "Strand" case opinion, which has jeopardized the approach Florida redevelopment agencies have used for decades to finance infrastructure critical to redevelopment success. Softening economic conditions are also impacting near-term redevelopment progress.

Regardless of the challenges we face, I am confident that the shared commitment of the Community Redevelopment Agency, dedicated citizen participants, the private sector, and this Administration will continue to help transform our CRAs into more safe, attractive and economically vibrant communities.

Sincerely,

Pam Iorio

An Overview: Community Redevelopment Agency

The Community Redevelopment Agency is a public entity established under the guidelines of the Community Redevelopment Act (Chapter 163, Part III, Florida Statutes) to implement community redevelopment activities. A Community Redevelopment Area (CRA) is created when the governing body finds one or more areas within the city with conditions that have the need for rehabilitation. A powerful redevelopment tool, the CRA uses the growth in assessed property values (TIF funds) to reinvest within their boundaries.

Tampa has nine Community Redevelopment Areas: Central Park, Channel District, Downtown (2), Drew Park, East Tampa, Tampa Heights Riverfront, and Ybor City (2). Under the direction of the Community Redevelopment Agency Board, five volunteer advisory boards made up of private citizens help provide community insight as the city works to improve the quality of life and economic vitality in these districts.

Members of Tampa City Council serve as the Community Redevelopment Agency. Dedicated city staff provide support services to the Agency and advisory boards including the management of redevelopment funding.

To support the work associated with the improvement of Tampa's urban communities, every person participating in CRA activities operates under five guiding principles:

Community Collaboration - proactively engage the talents and energies of citizens and key stakeholders throughout the revitalization process.

Financial Stewardship - ensure that sufficient public returns exist to support the required public investment.

Inspiration - utilize the best talent possible for urban planning and design review efforts to inspire and create attractive, livable areas.

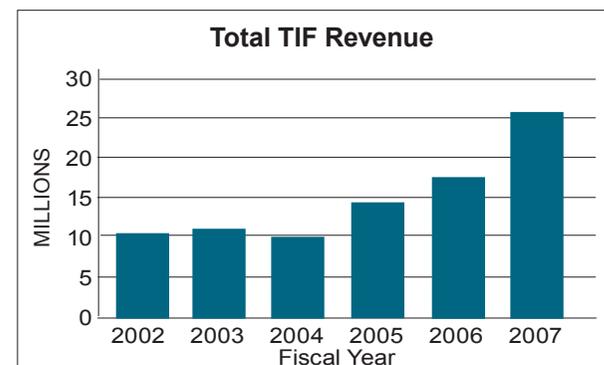

Market Perspective - allow the private sector to gainfully respond to market demands with reasonable risk.

Outcome Accountability - measure success based on achieving results such as improved community aesthetics, quality of life and tax revenues.

In addition to strategically investing tax increment revenues, redevelopment efforts utilize incentive programs and regulatory tools to attract quality private investment.

Community Redevelopment Areas are financed by Tax Increment Financing, or TIF. TIF is a unique tool available to cities and counties for the redevelopment of urban areas and is used to help stimulate private sector investment in targeted communities.

(2) By September 30th of each fiscal year, all funds have either been expensed, encumbered or appropriated towards a specific redevelopment project/program specified in the approved Community Redevelopment Plan.

What is a Community Redevelopment Area (CRA)?

- A CRA is a geographic area that meets the physical and/or economic conditions of a blighted area as defined in the Community Redevelopment Act of 1969 (Florida Statutes, Chapter 163, Part III).
- The area has to be formally designated by the local government as appropriate for redevelopment.
- It has to be determined that dedicated resources should be used to reduce or eliminate these blighted conditions and to stimulate community and economic revitalization.
- Once the CRA is established, Tax Increment Financing (TIF) programs may be implemented.
- TIF programs are generally long-term, 30-year commitments.
- CRAs have been created in other states throughout the country - Florida has over 140.
- The Community Redevelopment Act specifies that the governing body of the CRA is separate from the governing body of the jurisdiction in which the area is located.
- A five to seven member Board, created by the local government, administers the activities and programs within a CRA.
- The Board can be comprised of local government officials and/or other individuals appointed by the local government.
- Each CRA district must maintain separate trust funds and expend those funds only in that district.
- Advisory committees, public meetings and city staff provide input to the CRA Board.
- Annual budgets, financial reporting and activity reports are also required by the Community Redevelopment Act.

How is a CRA Created?

While the Community Redevelopment Act outlines the complete process for creating a CRA, listed are the major phases:

- The first step is to adopt the Finding of Necessity, a field study that formally identifies the blight conditions within the established boundaries of the area.
- Next, a Community Redevelopment Plan must be developed and then adopted. The plan should address the unique needs of the targeted area and include overall goals as well as identify programs and projects.
- Once a Redevelopment Trust Fund is established, it enables the CRA Board to direct the increase in real property tax revenues to the targeted area's needs.
- In Tampa, strategic action plans are produced for CRAs which are multiyear plans identifying specific projects, programs and implementation timelines.

Are there any special funding sources associated with a CRA?

- The Community Redevelopment Act allows for the creation of a Tax Increment Financing (TIF) district within a CRA.
- The Annual TIF Contribution is the increment value multiplied by the millage rate. A base value is established when the Property Appraiser reassesses the property values within the CRA. The Increment Value is the difference between the annual value and the base value.
- The TIF Contribution is captured in a trust fund to be spent within the district, as authorized by the CRA Board, on projects and programs identified in the Redevelopment Plan.

- The Community Redevelopment Act provides for the TIF contributions of various other jurisdictions' taxes to also be captured in the trust fund.

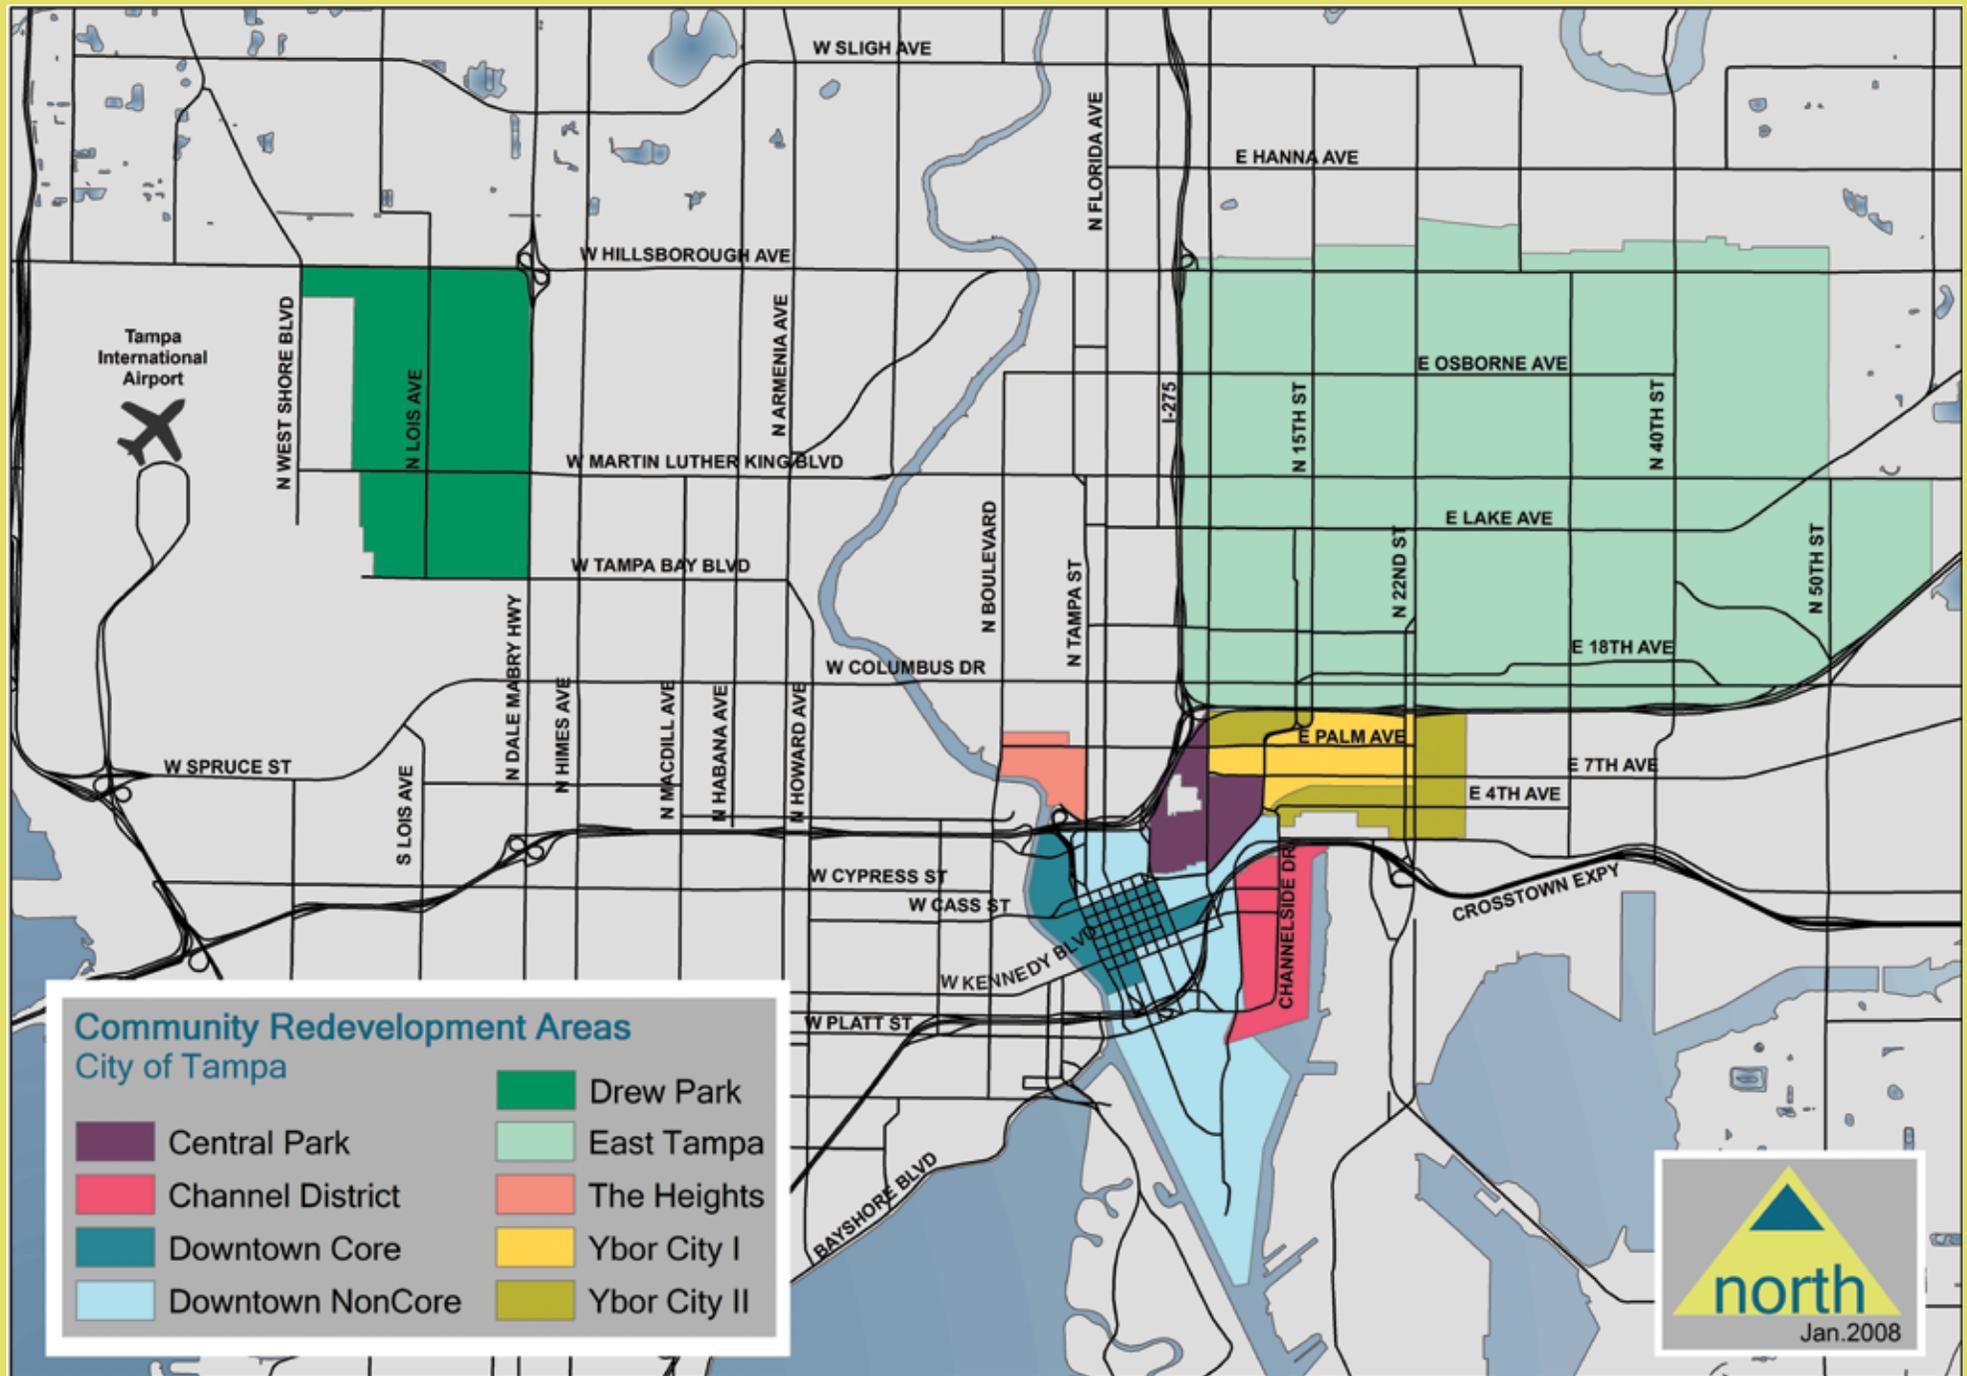

Importance of CRAs

- TIFs are a significant redevelopment tool available to CRAs.
- Thirty years is the usual term for both a TIF and a CRA.
- TIF revenues can only be invested to benefit the CRA in which they are generated.
- Typically, the needs of a CRA cannot be met with only TIF funds on a pay-as-you-go basis. Alternative financing techniques that can be utilized include bonding, developer partnerships and government front-ending of costs.

What happens at the end of the fiscal year with the remaining balances?

By September 30 of each fiscal year, funds identified for each of the individual CRAs have to be spent, encumbered or appropriated. These funds must be for the specific redevelopment projects specified in the approved Community Redevelopment Plan and the projects or programs are set to be completed within three years from the date of the appropriation.
